Univac Has Long Memory

Computer Catches Blonde

NEW YORK (UPI)—It was a delightful day and the attractive blonde in the tight white shorts was tooling along Grand Central Expressway en route to the beach

She was well within the speed limit and had nary a second thought about the police car stopped along the roadside. That is until a cruiser darted up beside her blue sports car and the patrolman at the wheel motioned her to pull over.

Mrs. Gloria Placenta was indignant. Her outrage increased when a busload of newsmen and photographers wheeled up to watch radio patrolman Benjamin C. Fishman arrest her for passing a red light-on May 5, 1964.

Mrs. Placenta was the victim of Operation Corral, a new police technique which uses a Univac 490 computer to spot stolen and uninsured cars and scofflaws for whom warrants have been issued.

Within the course of 27 seconds and the space of 900 feet, the Queens housewife had her licence plate number monitored, electronically checked and found to be on the wanted list. The rest was routine police work.

"What am I--some kind of criminal?" the angry housewife asked when Fishman told her a warrant was out for her arrest for failing to appear in court for her traffic violation.

"It's, a good thing I have steady nerves. You can drop dead from a thing like this," she growled as police prepared to drive her to a station house to be booked.

Mr. Pearson's Puzzle

HIS TWO DAYS at Woodwyn Farm on the Saanich Peninsula have been described by Prime Minister Pearson as among the happiest and most restful of his life. But it seems reasonable to assume that even so, and though he was free of the usual pressures, "to be or not to be" still occupied his thoughts a good part of the time; that the pros and cons of calling an election this fall did not cease to pass in review in his mind.

What were the considerations that would have been weighed on the prime minister's political scales? Tempting him to go ahead with an election would have been these:

• The wheat sale to Russia, which, even though it would have gone through no matter which party was in power in Ottawa, enables the Liberals to claim credit for a great economic boon, particularly to the west. The welfare legislation—especially medical insurance—that remains to be enacted on the Liberal program, and which Mr. Pearson clearly regards as appealing to the bulk of the voters, though many Canadians including a responsible segment of his own party are beginning to think Canada is proceeding farther and faster than it can afford into welfare-statism. • The friction inside the Progressive Conservative party over the leadership of Mr. Diefenbaker, which the Grits naturally see as to their advantage in a campaign.

• The desire of Premier Lesage for a Quebec election next year, which would not be compatible with a delayed federal election, since the Liberals of that province will want to belabor "centralist" Ottawa

On the other hand, there will have been as many points against seeking the favor of the voters at this time, to make Mr. Pearson's deliberations more difficult:

● The still comparatively fresh public recollection of the Dorion inquiry and its attendant circumstances, and of the equivocation and the fumbling that marked the Liberal government's conduct of the nation's affairs while Parliament was sitting.

 The fact that an election called at the earliest possible date would now be in November, an unpopular month for going to the polls.

The fear of an Ontario and western backlash against undue concessions to Quebec.

● The "immorality"—whether real or supposed of not waiting for the completion of the redistribution of parliamentary representation before holding the vote

• The minority government's inability to convince anyone that it is insecure in a House of Commons in which the Opposition parties, with every provocation, have never mustered the strength to

And on top of all this, Mr. Pearson must have in his mind the knowledge that in not announcing a forthcoming election, he would be as good as admitting the validity of the complaints against his government and his fear of the voters' retribution; in choosing to seek a new mandate, he would appear to be avoiding facing Parliament and as Mr. Diefenbaker has put it, answering for his administration's misdeeds.

Familiar Gambit

N DEFENDING his administration's Viet Nam policy against opposition Republican critics President Johnson has frequently stated that U.S. troops are being used in that country in order to keep the word given by former President Eisenhower.

His claim is that the Republican president promised military aid to Viet Nam in a letter he wrote in 1954 just after Viet Nam was split into Communist North and democratic South.

Mr. Elsenhower has now vehemently denied that he promised anything but "aid" and says that neither he nor his government saw any need for a military commitment.

The text of the Eisenhower letter shows that he offered to " . . . assist the government of Viet Nam in developing and maintaining a strong viable state capable of resisting attempted subversion or aggression through military means." The former president points out that throughout the letter the general term "aid" is used and no mention is made of troops.

If Mr. Eisenhower is right in his interpretation of the letter he personally wrote more than a decade then President Johnson is wrong in his view that the Republican administration of that time committed the United States to armed intervention in Viet Nam.

If, on the other hand, President Johnson is right in accepting the letter as a pledge by the United States government for all-out military aid to the embattled Southeast Asian republic, then he has succeeded in getting his government off a sharp and unhappy political hook.

All of which will be of great interest to Canadians who remember how Mr. Pearson employed exactly the same political gambit to bring nuclear weapons to Apparently it is becoming standard practice among North American politicians in power to attempt to place the blame for any unpopular or ill-considered policies they decide to pursue squarely upon their predecessors especially if those predecessors have a different brand of party politics.

The Race in Space

A MERICAN SPACE experiments in the past have seldom failed to draw some kind of praise, albeit faint and condescending, from the Russian press. This time-with Gemini 5-things have changed

Rather than handing out a few well-deserved compliments to Washington for its latest achievements in space, the Soviet news agency Tass, accuses the United States of taking risks with its astronauts in order to catch up with the Russians in the space race at any price.

Tass implies that the two men sent up in Gemini 5 were put in jeopardy because the spacecraft was powered with untried equipment.

The rest of the world, of course, may have different ideas. The Tass criticism, for instance, may easily be looked upon as a sign that the Soviet Union fears American ascendancy in space. The success of Mariner 4 which is still transmitting from something like 200 million miles away and the success of Gernini 5 now gives the United States apparent leadership in space in two district fields. Undoubtedly Tass is non preparing to condition

Ita Moncow readers to the Seviet view of not the tune! that the race in space is mainly to save face.

"Bottomly, your prospects in my organization are bright indeed. I like the way you cringe."

Free Trade Pact Will Hit Canada

By J. C. GRAHAM, from Wellington

Tougher competition in paper and forest products could be the chief effect for Canada of the free trade area agreement just reached between Australia and New Zealand.

The agreement provides that The agreement provites that from the beginning of 1966 tariffs will start to be phased out for commodities covering some

Hanoi Warned

Johnson Backing Is Solid

WASHINGTON (UPI) -President Lyndon Johnson
warned Hanoi's Communist leaders Wednesday that Americans are united behind U.S. policy in Viet Nam, no matter what his Republican critics

That was the chief executive's reply to a house Republican "white paper" which accused him of following a course of uncertainty that invited Com-munist miscalculations about U.S. determination in / Viet

Nam. NO PERSONALITIES

Speaking softly but with jaw firmly set, the president told a news conference he did not want to "get into any personalities in the matter" — a reference to house GOP leader Gerald R. Ford.

But he added: "I don't think that Hanol should ever for a moment entertain the illusion that the people of this country are not united in the work of this government." COSTLY MISTAKES

The 32-page, 6,000-word white paper, drafted by the house GOP planning and research committee under Ford's direction, charged Democratic presig dents with costly mistakes in Viet Nam. Only under Dwight D. Eisenhower, it said, was the ploture bright.

The ddcument, originally distributed for publication at 11 a.m. EDT Wednesday, was released by the Republicans Tuesday night after the White House announced Johnson would meet reporters at 10 a.m. before nation-wide television and radio. Apparently the Republi-cans wanted to keep Johnson from stealing their thunder. GREAT IMPORT

While Democrats on Capitol Hill denounced the GOP White Paper as a political gimmick, the president refused to reply directly to a question whether he thought it had injected "undue partisanship" into the Viet Nam situation.

"I think the issaues of war and peace in Viet Nam are far greater than any personal dif-ferences that one might have - for that matter, far greater than any party's," he said.

Harvest with Care

The fruit-picking sesson always brings with it a rash of nesty accidents, most of them preventable and nearly all of them attributable to the pareless use of ladders. I had the living daylights scared out of me a couple of years ago when one of my good neigh-hors was carted off to hospital with a broken shoulder blade and other in-juries, and almoe that time I have become a regular old woman over the Far too many family ladders are elderly pensioners which should have long since been chopped up for firewood. A good new ladder costs money; it is true, but not nearly as much as an accident. I do not think in pays handsomely to make a very careful inspection of the ladder before fruit picking starts, making sure every single rung is in a sound state of repair. of cracks in the sides of the ladder too as well as in the rungs.

Always set the ladder into the tree in such a way that if the supporting branch should break, the fall will be checked by the trusk or a atouter branch. Set the ladder at a fairly steep angle, as this reduces the strain on the supporting branch.

Make sure the foot of the ladder is apiked firmly into the ground, for a very common cause of accidents is a audden twint when one leg of the ladder lifts off the ground:

Treat plum and cherry trees with the greatest respect, for the wood is very brittle and a two- or three-inch branch can snap without any warning at all Pear trees are less dangerous but still not too reliable. Apples, unless the wood is clearly dead, will rarely let you down You can take a chance on fairly small branches and thereby reach the most clusive fruit if you make sure always there is a stronger branch behind it to check the ladder's fall. Always look to see where the ladder tip will fall if the supporting branch should break.

If you use a picking bag, never hang the sling around your neck. If you fall, you are less likely to break your neck or hang yourself if one arm is through the sling. Safer still, hang your bag or basket from the rung on the ladder or

motto: "One head for the ship and one for yourself." Reach well up and hang on by a rung, not by the side of the ladder. Then, if a rung should break or your foot should allp, the audden strain will not break your grip. For preference, wear boots with a strong and rigid sole. Leather is better than rubber, and boots safer than shoes

Among commercial fruit growers there seems to be some difference o opinion as to whether it is best to start picking at the top or hottom of the tree. One group holds that if you begin at the top, your bag will be lightest where the danger is greatest.

Most of the growers I talked to, how-ever feel that it is better for the fruit and better for the tree if picking commences with the bottom fruit. claim there is less likelihood of damage to branches and fruit on a heavily laden tree caused by the picker climb ing up and down. Moreover, the ladder settles more firmly as the picker works upward, and he acclimatizes himself gradually to height, be, the biggest problem still seems to be filling time on television for space shots. When you start the event at seven in the morning and you can't get off the air even at 6 o'clock at night, there is a tremendous amount of padding that has to be done.

ART BUCHWALD on Countdown In 1966

Keeping Show on the Pad

I can imagine what will happen a few space shots from now when the problem really becomes acute,

"Good morning, Chet."

"Good morning, David. How does the space shot look to you today?"

Well, as you know, there has been a 48-hour hold on the countdown, but we expect to get the go-shead from Houston very soon. In the meantime, let's go down to Frank McGee, who is standing by the rocket here at Cape Kennedy, Frank, can you give us some idea of what's going on down there!

The sun has just come up, David, and it's quite a sight to see."

'Could you describe it to us?" "Well, from where I'm standing, it's round and looks like a great big fiery ball. Scientists have informed me it's 85.000.000 miles from the earth and it's very hot. As you can see, it's rising from the east and it will in all probability set in the west. I have been told that without the sun the earth might not sustain life . . ."

"Can we interrupt you, Frank? We're now going to hear from Sander Vanocur, who is talking with the foreman of Wong Brothers Laundry in Coco Beach, the company that has laundered all the overalls used in this apace shot."

Thanks, Chet, Mr. Wong, you've played a pretty important role in this flight. Could you tell us how exactly you washed the overalls that the technicians are

No problem. We threw them in machine, then put in water and soap. Chop-chop, they came out all clean

"Wouldn't you say that your laundry has made agreat contribution to this space flight?"

"You bet your life. If you have dirty overalls you are going to have a dirty flight

Thank you, Mr. Wong. Now back to Chet Huntley."

"Thanks, Sander. We're now going to Tulsa, Oklahoma, where Paul Hackes is standing by to interview a howhood friend of astronaut Zeke Zlevin, one of the three men who will take Gemini 23 into space."

"Well, Chet. I'm here with Carlton Malabu, a boyhood friend of Zeke Zlevin's and we've been discussing Zeke's childhood. Carl, what kind of a boy was Zeke

"I really didn't know Zeke as well as I did his sister." "What kind of a sister did Zeke have?

"I only met her once at a dance. I didn't even know she was related to Zeke. As a matter of fact, I didn't even "And that's the last time you saw Zeke?"

"Yeah. We kind of lost touch. But I always knew a guy with a sister like that would some day become an

"We still have some time before countdown, so let's go out to Glocking Falls where Nancy Dickerson has been talking with one of the wives of the astronauts."

Thanks, David. It's very quiet here on Elm Street. Mrs. George Crinkle is inside this house now with her family and 12 Life photographers and NBC has just learned that she had a breakfast of bacan and eggs, black coffee, and rys toast."
"Thanks, Nancy, Now let's go back to Erank McGee at Cape Kennedy, Frank, where is the sun now?"

'It's just over my head, Chet. And it's really getting hot. But I've just been informed that this is normal and the sun always gives off heat when it's overhead."

Thanks, Frank, Now let's go to Houston where Ray Scherer is talking to the mother of the taxi driver who took the three astronauts to the airport."

Outsiders Barred

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)-What with the Paris paper razzi being so curicus about her private life, voluptuous star Gina Lellobrigida, has turned her apartment in the French capital into an armored medieval fortress. Literally, her front door is armoreplated, and anyone coming up in the elevator can be scrutinized on the ride up to the top floor. Gina is renting all of it. On arrival, the passenger can be trapped with no way out. Very James Bondish, but I am sure this would not apply to Gina's husband, Doctor Skoffe. At this distance, however, I am not certain about the status of their marriage, over which there have been constant rumors

Gina is in Paris to contar with Mr Alec Guinness in the Peter Gienville, production, Hotel Paradise. At the moment. Gina is being pursued by three rather unusual admirers. One is a Parks dandy aged 60, who sends little notes every day accompanied by flowers, begging her to be nationt because he'll be marrying her soon he says. The second is much younger and much more dangerous. He called the other night, got as far as the armor-plated door; banged on it so hard that the police had to take him to the hospital. It turned out that all he warded were answers to his, questions about her philosophy on life and love. When the police asked him:
"Why Gina?" He replied, ingically: "Because Brights is not my type." . . . The Lollo's third admirer is in a more distinguished class-painter Salvador Dall,

As for Sir Alec and Lady Guinness, they are managing to lend a quiet life in Piles in an apartment tucked away among the lorigings of students and the antique

Many of today's newspaper boys will be the leaders of tomorrow. The future judges, mayors, premiers-yes, even the prime ministers of our great land-may well get their first lessons in leadership from a newspaper route.

Route management encourages inftiative, dependability, resourcefulness and courtesy---important character-building traits. And surveys show that newspaper boys rank higher scholastically than the avernge student.

The training a boy receives delivering newspapers gives him a great start in life. Prominent citizens at every hand are examples of the kind of men these boys become.

Now U.S. Moves for Military Supremacy in Space

By HOWARD BENEDICT HOUSTON Tex. (AP)-Milltary men know the best way to gain a battle advantage is to take the high ground and hold

Now, with an order to develop n Manued Orbiting Laboratory, the U.S. defence department will extend this axiom hundreds of miles into space in an effort to gain military supremacy be-fore the Soviet Union or any other country grabs control.

The race to achieve military dominance in space might be more vital to mankind than the dash for the moon. If a country with hostile intentions commanded space, military experts say it could exercise a policy of international blackmall with a network of manned and unmanned spacecraft capable of raining nuclear destruction on Wednesday, neither country wanted to admit it.

But President Johnson removed the myth that the United States is pursuing a purely peaceful and scientific space program. He gave the defence department the green light to develop the MOL to determine ful military duties in space. The $1,500,000,000 he authorized is nearly $2,000,000 more than the cost of the two-man

Gemini program. It will cover the price for development, test flights and the launching of five two-man orbiting laboratories.

Each MOL will consist of a Gemini capsule hooked to a tank-like section the size of a medium-size house trailer. On launching, the astronauts will ride the Gemini, then transfer to the tank which will be equipped as a scientific labora-After 30 days or more

PORT ALBERNI-The Alberni Valley is in the throes of an epidemic of hepatitis, one of the worst outbreaks of the disease in this province in years.

And residents here are wondering how closely the disease is linked to the use of septic tunks in rural areas of the Valley.

Residents began using questions about the tie-in between ditions, after Dr. Gerald Bonham said the disease has been running at "epidemic proportions" since January.

Of the 152 cases reported, 98 were in unsewered areas, and only 54 in the more populous

Based on total population, the sease has been contracted by 13.3 persons per thousand in areas without sewers, such as Cherry Creek, Beaver Point, and Sproat Lake.

But hepatitis has been conracted by only 3.2 persons per thousand in those portions of Alberoi and Port Alberoi served

THE GIN THAT WON THE WEST

Western Canadian ranches their taste for LONDON DEY GIN came with them.

What more natural thing to do here—where fine grain and glacial water produce splendid spirits—than to import-betanicals, such as jumiper, coriander and other earlie forca, and begin distilling gin in the LONDON DEY tradition?

From this beritage comes RANCHMAN'S — the western gin with the English accent. Next time, ask for RANCHMAN'S GIN
